

I am adamantly opposed to the legalization of cell phone use on board aircraft in flight. Right now, it is virtually impossible to find any peace & quiet in an airport terminal, but at least you can get up and move if & when a person nearby starts talking loudly on their phone. Once seated in an airplane, the passenger cannot move away from the annoyance. Therefore allowing cell phone use on airplanes would infringe on the passengers' reasonable expectation of being able to relax on the flight.
